

Meet Sophia: Medical Assisting Student

<https://youtu.be/HrTPn1g1pLo>

[Open on SOPHIA GRAY looking into the camera]

SOPHIA GRAY

Hi, my name is Sophia Gray. I'm currently going to the HACC Gettysburg Campus, and I'm in the medical assisting program.

[Transition to new clip of SOPHIA]

SOPHIA

It is really fun. I love meeting, uh, just my different classmates, everyone... um, it's a really awesome atmosphere. The teachers there, they really help you. Some of them have gone through the program before, so they kind of know what you're going through, and they can help you along with that. The classroom is really fun, um, we're, especially in the labs. We get to draw blood, we get to do little finger pricks. It's fun - sometimes a little scary - but, um, I love that. I love my professors, they do a great job of teaching and they really explain things well. I think HACC is really unique because, um, it offers so many, uh, different classes and just the different, the diversity of people there is, is really cool. You get to meet so many different people and it's really awesome how you all just kinda unite as a community.

[Cut to black]